

A simple solution

Sunday September 29, 2019

Climate change, destruction of nature, mass extinction, pollution, etcetera needs urgently an evolution and expansion in consciousness. The answer is awakening now. Real solutions can only rise out of presence, out of consciousness, where we deeply feel the oneness of all that exists. We need to protect nature. We need to re-discover our inner nature. Only then we truly understand the outer nature and the oneness of all things.

One of the practical solutions for climate change, destruction of the environment etcetera is to make our ecological footprint as small as possible. A simple solution is sharing. In other words, to live together in communes. A commune is basically sharing on a daily level what humans need in our days, which means housing, energy, transport, jobs, money. Besides a massive reduction in the consumption of energy and matter through sharing, there are many other ecological, economic, social, psychological and creative advantages. For example, sharing the daily work like cooking, cleaning, shopping, maintenance, improving, etcetera gives everybody more time to be creative. More time to be together in daily meetings, to find creative solutions for whatsoever challenge comes up. One of the main blessings of commune living is to share life with your friends every day. Loneliness, feeling isolated, having nobody to speak to, nobody to share a hug, disappears completely from your life. Remember, together we can create miracles, we can make the impossible possible.
